Diversity isn't just a concept at Verizon. It's a way of life.

Our commitment to diversity simply is part of what we do every day — from work force development and supplier relationships to economic development, marketing and philanthropy.

More than 13,000 Verizon employees — many from around the globe — call this city home. Last year alone, we invested more than $1 billion in their compensation and benefits. And we contributed some $8 million to 278 NYC non-profit organizations in 2007.

We're proud of our achievements and the recognition we've received. But we're most proud of the impact we're having in our hometown — New York City.
